

ORDERS ENTERED BY COURT TODAY

JUDGE DYER OF MISSOURI COURT MAKES WEDNESDAY'S OR-DER EFFECTIVE.

EXPECT TO WIN THE CASE

Attorney General Wickersham is Confident That He Will Carry His Point When Trial Comes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Louis, Mo., June 1.—The restraining order granted last night at Hannibal by Judge Dyer of the United States district court, against twenty-five western railroads to prevent them from advancing their freight rates was certified to in the United States circuit court here today.
The railroad officials generally refused to be quoted concerning the suit. While they refuse to express opinions at present they claim the action of the government was a surprise to them.

It was pointed out, however, that the attack on the railroads was unique in one respect. It is the first time in which the commercial interests of the chief western cities are not proceeding in full harmony. The St. Louis league of business men is not antagonizing the proposed increase of freight rates, but in other cities opposition has developed.

The most important active forces in opposing the increase of rates are said to be the Missouri Manufacturers association and the St. Louis and Milwaukee Manufacturers association.

It was stated this morning that it was not the purpose of the railroads to increase all rates in this territory today. Only the commodity rates were to have been advanced, which apply almost solely to freight in which the general public was not directly interested.

WICKERSHAM'S VIEWS.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—Attorney General Wickersham is sanguine of winning his suit to enjoin the twenty-five western railroads from putting into effect the rate increase. Wickersham today issued a statement in which he said that he was convinced last Friday that the proposed increases were "subversive of the interests of the public." He said that he began first work on the suit Friday but that he considered the success of the undertaking. He sent Assistant Attorney General Grosvenor west on Sunday night.

SECURED A TIP AND MADE BIG "KILLING"

Who Learned That Government Would Enjoin Roads and Plunge on Market?

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., June 1.—Official Washington is deeply interested in an effort to find out who made a "killing" in Wall street yesterday, that must have been based on advance information of the government's decision to enjoin the western railroads.

New York, June 1.—Active unloading of stocks characterized the opening of the market today, resulting in violent declines.

MEETING IN CREAM CITY WILL ATTRACT ALL THE DEMOCRATS

Chairman Davies of State Central Committee Has Attendance At Convention Will Be Very Large.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, June 1.—The Milwaukee meeting of democratic state central committee under county chairman on Thursday afternoon will be largely attended, according to Joseph R.
Davies, chairman of the state committee. Mr. Davies said the most important matter to be considered is the primary law and the next place of meeting. In the last presidential campaign a large democratic vote was cast, while during the Merion campaign, after victorious primary campaign, about 28,000 votes were cast, not quite 50 per cent.

of the Clear Lake Ice Co., a one-story structure, and the damage done is less than $5,000. The roof fell almost as soon as the fire department arrived and the men narrowly escaped being buried in the ruins. Three sustained broken limbs by being hit

Brought Against Great Northern.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., June 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today reopened the hearing of the case of the Northwestern millers against the Great Northern Railway and other interstate railroads carrying flour from Northwestern points to the Atlantic seaboard, which involves the question of freight rates on flour between Minneapolis, Duluth and other northwestern points and New York. At the first hearing the Commission decided in favor of the complainants and ordered a cut in the flour rates from 23 to 21 1/2 cents per 100 pounds, beginning May 10. Upon the petition of the railroads the order was suspended and a rehearing ordered. Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis and other milling points in the West are represented at the hearing.

Celebration Of Day.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

seventy-five years tomorrow, having been born at Anagni on June 2, 1835.
In accordance with the traditions of only the congratulations of the members of his household and the members of his family.

YALE BEGINS TRAINING FOR RACE WITH HARVARD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New Haven, Ct., June 1.—The Yale crew departed today for its permanent training quarters at Gales Ferry, where active preparation for the coming race with Harvard will begin immediately. The active training at Gales Ferry this year begins a week earlier than has been the case in former years. This is regarded as of great importance to the Yale crew-men, as it gives them four weeks instead of three for their final training on the Thames.

FOLK TO ANNOUNCE POLITICAL PLANS

Ex-Governor of Missouri Expected to State Tonight Whether or Not
He Will Be in Senatorial Race.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Louis, Mo., June 1.—The political situation in Missouri is already very interesting, but it promises to be much more so after the banquet here tomorrow night at which former Governor Joseph W. Folk is expected to announce definitely whether he will be a candidate for the United States senate, or whether he will reserve his strength for the race for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1912. The banquet will be held under the auspices of the Missouri Democratic League. The Folk organization formed at the harmony meeting at Kansas City last January, and will be attended by many Democratic leaders from various parts of the state.

The close political associates of the opinion that he will make the race for the senatorship. This opinion is based largely on the belief that should governor Harmon of Ohio be re-elected this year he is bound to take precedence over all other possibilities now mentioned for the head of the democratic national ticket two years hence.

On the other hand, the chances of electing a democratic senator to succeed Senator Warner, republican, are regarded as very bright by the democratic leaders in Missouri. Should former Governor Folk enter the race the contest for the senatorship will probably develop into one of the liveliest political contests Mo. has seen in many years. Ex-Governor David R.
Francis has already announced his candidate for the democratic nomination to succeed Senator Warner, as have also James A. Reed, former mayor of Kansas City, and Sterling
P. Bond of St. Louis. On the republican side Senator Warner will be opposed for reelection by Governor Hudley and possibly one or two others. The contest will be decided by the State primaries next November.

GOLD BRICK GAME STILL PROFITABLE

George W. Post And E. A. Starkoff
Alleged Notorious "Con" Men Have Hearing At Philadelphia.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Philadelphia, June 1.—George W.
Post and E. A. Starkoff, said to be two of the most notorious confidence men in the country, were given a preliminary hearing today before United States Commissioner Craig on charge of using the mails to defraud. From the mass of evidence which the postoffice inspectors are said to have gathered against the pair the "greenback" game and the gold brick swindle have not by any means outlived their usefulness as a get-rich-quick medium.

According to the Government officers who testified at the hearing, Post and Starkoff roused a harvest of over $100,000 in less than a year by selling mythical gold mines to bricks of the "presious metal," which later turned out to be worthless junk. The pair are alleged to have been associated with "Red" Adams, the notorious "Greenback" swindler who was recently sent to Sing Sing prison from Brooklyn, where he had resided with his family for several years and had been known among his neighbors as a respectable and prosperous business man.

ROOSEVELT'S LAST SPEECH AROUSES STORM OF PROTEST

Will Increase Difficulty of Egyptian Problem—Newspaper Criticism Grows More Severe.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 1.—Government officials and members of the English cabinet are today convinced that Col.
Theodore Roosevelt's speech yesterday at Guild hall, in which he rebuked English administration of affairs in Egypt, will greatly increase the difficulty in dealing with the political situation that confronts England in Egypt. Today's newspaper criticism of Roosevelt increases in severity.

HOLSTLAW STATES WHY HE ACCEPTED SENATORIAL BRIBE

"Everyone Else Was 'Doing the Same Thing.' His Reason—Wife Is Prostrated by Exposure.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Juba, Ill., June 1.—Senator Holstlaw, in an interview today, said he could not explain why he, a man who could command a quarter of a million dollars in his own family, accepted money to vote for Lorimer, unless it was because "Everyone else was doing the same thing." He said he felt that the indictment for perjury was a bluff and did not frighten him, but when asked if he was paid for voting for Lorimer he had to tell them the truth.

A daughter of Holstlaw broke down and told an interviewer that her mother was prostrated and that she did not believe her father could have been in his right mind when he accepted the money.

To Be Made Immune.
Springfield, Ill., June 1.—Representative H. C. Teckemeyer, who made what is now known as a confession No. 2 in the Lorimer bribing and "jack pot" corruption scandal will be a witness before the Sangamon county grand jury tomorrow. Mr. Teckemeyer will be granted immunity if he will agree to tell the grand jury what he knows. Twelve indictments for perjury and one for bribery are expected tomorrow, but who are to be named is not disclosed.

quash the indictment against State Representative Leo O'Neill Browne, who was indicted on charges that he had bribed State Representative White to vote for Lorimer for senator.

Judge McSorely held that members of the legislature were not officers of the federal government when voting for United States senators, and held that the courts of Cook county had jurisdiction in the Browne case. He overruled the motion of the defense for a postponement for two weeks in placing Browne on trial, and set the date for the trial for June 6th.

ROUTINE WORK AT COUNCIL MEETING

CITY DADS TURN DOWN A. E.
BADGER'S BILL FOR $107.50.

REPORTS WERE SUBMITTED

By Health Officer and Chief of Police —Numerous Public Improvements
Are Authorized.

Except that former City Clerk A. E. Badger's bill of $107.50 for services on the board of review in 1904 and 1905 was disallowed, and there was a long discussion regarding the advisability of narrowing Mineral Point Ave. to accommodate the Wisconsin Telephone Company, there was little business of interest outside of routine work transacted by the common council at their meeting last night, at which all of the aldermen except E. W. Lowell were present.

There was not a dissenting vote when Alderman Dullin, after the city clerk had read the finance committee's report on the usual amount of bills, moved that Mr. Badger's bill be stricken from the roll. This action on the part of the council will probably be followed by the city being made defendant in a suit for that sum. This occurred when Ex-mayor Hutchinson's claim for payment for the same work was not allowed and in that instance the plaintiff secured judgment. Whether or not Mr. Badger will be more successful in his suits remains to be seen, but that his chances are good is shown by the fact that in Oshkosh, the city succeeded in obtaining judgment against the city in a similar case.

Mr. Badger asserted that should the council allow his bill, it would not set a precedent that would compel the city to pay all city clerks following his term of office for their services on the board of review. Prior to 1905, the amount of his bill was recognized as part of the clerk's salary. In 1906, however, the law was changed and this parolite is now expressly forbidden. In short, Mr. Badger's bill will be the only one that the city can be compelled to pay.

Except for the former city clerk's bill, the list of bills was allowed and together with the salary list for the months of May, ordered paid.

With reference to the proposition to narrow Mineral Point Ave., no action was taken in open meeting but A. M. Fisher and Manager J. C. Schuler of the Wisconsin Telephone Company explained the matter in the committee room and it was taken under advisement. It appears that an alderman of the ward was about to order compelling the company to move their poles on the above named thoroughfare between Jackson and Chatham streets back about half a foot from the curb line. In their present position they will cut into the cement gutters which have been ordered built on those four blocks. As the poles are large and heavy, and much work and expense would result if they were moved, the company asked that the terrace on the north side of Mineral Point Ave. be widened about six inches and the street narrowed a corresponding distance. This will make the curbs already laid out of line and it is hardly probable that the request will be granted.

Health Officer's Report.
There are at present, according to the report submitted by City Health Officer Dr. J. B. Richards, 1000 houses quarantined for scarlet fever. Four of these were under quarantine when he assumed his duties of his office and eleven have been quarantined since that time. During the same time, eight houses have been fumigated and this preventative measure has also been carried out at the Adams School. During the month of May there have been sixteen births and thirteen deaths. Dr. Richards' report also contained some facts regarding the work done in cleaning alleys and in clearing away rubbish. The report which was presented at the meeting Monday night was accepted and placed on file.

City Marshal's Report.
The report of the City Marshal, George M. Appleby, showing a total of 112 arrests for the month of May was also accepted and placed on file. Of those taken in charge, 54 were brought into court and 59 discharged from the clerk's office. The arrests were for the following causes: violation of city speed ordinance, 1; violation of liquor ordinance, 1; vagrancy, 4; burglary, 1; robbery, 1; incivility, 2; boozing, 2; disorderly, 2; assault and battery, 2; wife desertion, 1; drunkenness, 85.

The arrests are credited as follows: Brown, 24; Dorn, 21; Appleby, 17; Hallen, 16; Fanning, 12; Champion, 12; Morrissey, 8; Palmer, 1; Dalton, 1.

Sidewalk Crusade.
After Aldermen Evans and Lowell had inspected the sidewalks which the inspector for that ward had recommended be either repaired or rebuilt in accordance with the action taken by the council some time ago and found the list satisfactory, the former introduced an order instructing the street commissioner to notify the property owners affected and have the work done. This leaves but the fourth ward to act in the sidewalk crusade.

In payment for the work done in inspecting sidewalks in the different wards, orders were ordered drawn in favor of Wm. Brown, W. E. Dullin and E. W. Boylan for $20 each for eight days' work at $2.50 a day.

Public Improvements.
Work on the new Spring Brook bridge will soon begin according to an order introduced and carried last night which provides that the street assessment committee purchase the materials needed and begin the work as soon as possible. Other improvements authorized were the laying of cement gutters and curbing on River St., from Race St. to Mineral Point Ave., on West Bluff St., from River St. to Academy St., on Pearl St., from Racine St. to Mineral Point Ave., on Glen St., from Bluff St. to Milton Ave., on Fifth Ave., from Prospect Ave. to Glen St., on Prospect Ave., from Main St. to Milton Ave.

It was also decided to repair N. Terrace St., from Mineral Point Ave. to Washington St., Court St., from Main St. to Wisconsin St., and S. Main St., from Racine St. to Sharon St. Clean the gutters on Racine St., from Racine St. to Sharon St., and Sharon St., to TAOI.

from Main St., to Logan St., and such others in the same ward as need it, and lay standard brick cross walks across Holmes St., on the west side of S. Academy St., across Caroline St., on the south side of Hyatt St., and across Prairie Ave., on the north side of Hyatt St.

Other Business.
Other business transacted was the acceptance of the bond of the Gazette Printing Company as the official city paper for the present year, the acceptance of the quit claim deed of the Janesville Button Mills for a strip of land on Fourth Ave., which was ordered recorded, the acceptance of a petition from property owners on the south end of Jackson and Franklin streets asking that the International company be compelled to sprinkle between their tracks, the issuance of an order for $16.75 in favor of John Connors for lay for the fire department and an order perpetuating the officers of the city clerk and city treasurer to remain closed Saturday afternoons during the months of July and August.

Call A Meeting.
A meeting has been arranged for tomorrow morning at nine o'clock between the Highway Committee, the city engineer, the aldermen of the ward and local Manager J. C. Schuler and the question of moving the telephone poles or widening the terrace on Mineral Point Ave. will be discussed. According to Mr. Schuler, a number of the residents on the street are in favor of the change and as many of the poles are set in concrete eight feet deep, blasting may be necessary before they can be moved.

CARE OF THE JEWEL CASE.

How to Clean and Brighten Real and Artificial Stones.

Prepared chalk is the best all round cleanser for jewelry of all descriptions. A small box of the chalk is, as a matter of fact, as important in the dressing case as a clean chamois leather, with which silver buttons and buckles can be brightened. An excellent method of combining the two is that of enclosing the block of chalk in a leather bag drawn around the neck with a tape, which can be used both to keep it intact and to act as a pulisher.

For gold chains there is nothing to equal a paste made of chalk and methylated spirit, while a fine brush must be used after the paste has dried on so as to clear it of powder and give a brilliant polish. Benzine is sometimes employed by jewelers in cleaning precious stones. It should not, of course, be allowed to touch pearls or even turquoise, moonstones or opals, all of which require the greatest care in their treatment and are the first to show signs of neglect.

In the case of diamonds, sapphires, rubies and emeralds the benzine treatment may be tried, however, provided great care is observed, as benzine fumes are very inflammable.

The rings, if set in claw settings and other small items, should be collected and laid to soak in a little benzine, after which the jewels should be washed in ordinary soap and water, rinsed in cold water and finally placed on a cloth to drain. Experts further dip the jewels in alcohol, as to evaporate the remaining water, damp of any description being certain to dull the surface of the newly cleaned stone.

To keep jewelry in seawater is the very best method of obtaining the constant cleaning which would otherwise be necessary, and it is an excellent plan to keep a small bag made of chamois leather in the dressing case, filling this with sawdust and using it to hold all brooches, earrings and rings which are not actually in daily use.

It is not, however, only real jewels which put a tax on time and patience when away from home. The many secondary gems which are used for buckles, earrings and chains, as well as the hatpins, which seem to get more and more ornate every day, require even greater attention. Old paste is best cleaned with dry prepared chalk. The same treatment agrees also with such stones as peridot or marquisite. It is never advisable to allow imitation stones to become wet, while a damp paste, moreover, which in some cases would do no harm to the gem itself, might loosen the setting.

CLEANING OF FURS.

How It Can Be Done by the Use of Simple Remedies.

Ermine and mink are best cleaned with soft flannel. Rub the fur well against the grain, then dip the flannel into common fur and rub the fur until clean; shake the fur and again rub it with a fresh piece of soft, clean, new flannel till the fur is out. By this process the color of the ermine is preserved, and the lining need not be removed. Sable, chinchilla, squirrel, etc., are cleaned with new bran, which must be warmed very carefully in a pan, but not burnt; therefore while waiting stir it frequently. Rub the warm bran into the fur for some time, shake it and brush until free from bran. The fur will clean better if the stuffing and lining are removed and the article laid straight and flat as possible on a table or board.

Wool brush the fur before it is cleaned, and if there are any moth eaten parts they must be removed and replaced with new pieces. The following method is said to be adopted in Russia: Some rye flour is put into a pan upon the stove and heated, being stirred constantly with the hand as long as the heat can be borne. Then the flour is spread all over the fur and rubbed in well. It is then brushed gently with a very clean brush or beaten softly till all the flour is removed. It is claimed that this method will make the fur appear almost new.

MAKING FARM HANDS TIDY.

How One Woman Accomplished It Through a System of Fines.

At a meeting of a woman's institute for the benefit of farmers' wives a paper was read on the artistic decoration of the home, and especial stress was laid upon the wife's having a dainty table. It was written by a woman whose home was luxurious and whose taste was exquisite.

"But," asked one woman, "how can I have a dainty table? I have ten in the family—four children, four hired men most of the time and my husband and myself. The hired men are generally foreigners, hopelessly untidy. It is all I can do to get them to wash their hands and faces and comb their hair before they come to the table. I cannot set a separate table and get through with my other work. How can I manage to have a dainty table? The men roll the tablecloth and wipe their mouths on their sleeves, and I'm—well, I'm just discouraged. I tried furnishing them napkins, but I would have to give them fresh ones at each meal in order to keep decently clean. That meant more washing than I can do, so it was out of the question." And the speaker's eyes filled with tears, for this was one of her unsolvable problems.

"Well, sister, I'll tell you how I manage," smilingly answered a bright faced woman. "In the first place, I put a washstand covered with white cloth, with pitcher and bowl and tin soap jar, out in the back entry. I hang up a mirror, brushes, combs and nail cleaner (I bought them at the ten cent counter); also a long roller towel, a shoe brush, a small broom and a big piece of soap. Then I said to the men: 'This is your dressing room. You must make yourselves tidy before coming to the table. In the house I make the rules, and if you do not comply with them I shall fine you 5 cents for each transgression and deduct it from your wages.'"—Bellevue for April.

Fine Growth of Potatoes.

A remarkable potato has attracted some attention at Aubank, in Ayrshire, Scotland. Amongst some rose bushes which Mr. Morran, the station master, got from France, one potato plant appeared, which he allowed to come to maturity. When it was dug in the autumn of last year it was found that there were at the root 48 potatoes which weighed fully 14 pounds. The potato is of fine quality, with shallow eyes and a beautiful skin.

WHAT WAS ON THE HOOK?

By MARY RUTH TRUESDALE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When Samuel Atterbury died and left his son Isaac his sole heir the young man was twenty-seven years old. He did not inherit the miserly qualities of his father. He was a quiet fellow and longed for a home, something his father had, considered himself too poor to give him. Isaac had not lived the life of a gentleman and had no idea of meeting and courting a lady for a wife. He desired to marry, but had sufficient sense to understand that he would be the target for designing women. His father had scarcely been laid to rest before Isaac was the recipient of a beautiful offer from a young woman who was anxious to marry him. He read every one of them, thinking that he might see something by which he might detect genuine good sense, the faculty he most desired in a wife. He did find one that impressed him with its guilelessness. A girl who gave her name as Blanche Byron and her age as eighteen said that some of her friends were putting in applications for his hand and she had concluded to do the same, not that she had any hope of getting the situation, but her mother, who was an invalid and whom she supported, had urged her to do so. She sent with her letter her photograph. There was such honest innocence in the face that Isaac was impressed.

Isaac did not reply to her letter, but a few weeks later he appeared at her home as an agent for a sewing machine company and insisted on selling her a machine. The girl looked longingly at the machine, for she earned her living by her needle and needed a new machine badly. She regretted that she could not afford to buy it and was turning away when the agent made her a proposition so favorable that she stopped to think. When a woman hesitates with a salesman at the door she is lost. The agent, without waiting for her to make up her mind, removed the machine from the wagon to the house. Then he filled in the necessary blanks, and before the girl knew what she was about she had signed them.

Isaac had made the installments to be paid weekly on each Saturday night. When the first payment came due he appeared about 8 o'clock in the evening. Blanche had the money ready for him, but instead of going away he lingered to talk with her. The next Saturday evening when he came for payment of the note he stopped longer. Indeed, his visits grew more and more extended and the relations between the two more tender. Some time before the last installments were due Isaac one evening when he called to collect tore up the notes and left her the possession of the machine. Blanche's gratitude kindled love, and not long after this when Isaac proposed under the name of Nathan Griggs she accepted him.

She had scarcely given her word when the postman called and handed her an answer to the offer of marriage she had made the multimillionaire several months before. He informed her that on receiving her letter and her picture he had taken pains to learn something about her, had seen her and had been so favorably impressed with her that he had decided to give her the situation of wife to him.

There was a situation of another kind. Blanche had a few days before accepted a sewing machine agent, and now comes an offer of marriage from a multimillionaire.

Blanche fortunately received the letter when her mother was upstairs and knew nothing about it. Blanche took it up to her own room and hid it in her bureau drawer, saying nothing about it to her mother, whom she knew would give her no peace till she had broken with the sewing machine agent and accepted the multimillionaire. Isaac called that evening. He expected to find his betrothed in at least a state of uncertainty and had but little doubt that he would receive his dismissal. He found Blanche in no different condition than usual, except that the greeting kiss she gave him was a trifle more affectionate.

Isaac passed the evening expecting every moment that the letter would be mentioned, but when he arose to go and nothing had been said about it he began to wonder. He had stood behind a tree on the opposite side of the street and seen the postman hand Blanche a letter and knew that it was his, for he had purposely put it in a pink envelope. He had come expecting Blanche to tell him of her offer.

The next day Isaac received a letter from Blanche in answer to his proposal, stating that since her letter to him she had received a similar offer from one who loved her and whom she loved and that it would not be honorable nor could she bear to disappoint him. She must therefore beg him to excuse her.

Isaac on receipt of this letter remarked to himself, "Since she is so reticent over her affairs I will practice some reticence myself." As the wedding day approached he told her that his straitened circumstances would require a very modest wedding, and since he had no house of his own to take her to they must remain in her own home.

The marriage took place in her modest abode, after which her husband drove her to a handsome residence. She did not know till then that instead of capturing a sewing machine agent she had captured a multimillionaire.

Fixing the Responsibility. "I never heard Mrs. Green make so poor a speech." "Yes, wasn't it awful! I'm certain her husband couldn't have written it." —Detroit Free Press.

Wise and Unwise Charity.

How often it is difficult to be wisely charitable—to do good without multiplying the sources of evil. To give alms in nothing unless you give thought also. It is written, not "Blessed is he that feedeth the poor," but "blessed is he that considereth the poor." A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money.—Ruskin.

Beauty That Attracts.

Beauty of achievement, whether in overcoming a hasty temper, a habit of exaggeration, in exploring a continent with Stanley, or guiding well the ship of state with Gladstone, is always fascinating, and, whether known in a circle large as the equator or only in the family circle at home, those who are in this fashion beautiful are never desolate, and some one always loves them.—Frances E. ## A City Boy and a Cow.

Young Robert was much interested in looking over the pictures in his first primer. He lives not so far from the stock yards in West Philadelphia, and has been told that the animals are slaughtered. He became highly excited over the picture of a cow. "Mamma, mamma," he cried, "I once saw a cow in the street and a man was going to kill her for her milk!"—Philadelphia Times.

Noses of Our Ancestors.

Ancient white man had immense bony buttresses like a billy goat's bulging out above his eyebrows, he had brow and no forehead, and no bony bridge of the nose to speak of. So when such an evolutionary granddaddy got a sockdologer over his eyes and nose with a flat or a club it didn't much matter. He did not have to have the bridge of his nose raised by a surgical engineer, nor have his eye painted by a "black eye artist." The same kind of clubbing today would not only spoil a man's looks for life, but might end him then and there. It is pretty clear that the white man's nose is a type of the white man's mind in everything bespeaking gentle manners.

The Ticklemouse

—and his Sleepyland Adventures

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

The Chocolate Divers

WHEN the Ticklemouse tickled Davy and Dorfy awake last night as the nursery clock struck twelve, they looked at once for the box of chocolates.

"Open them, Willy," smiled Dorfy. "They're for you and Mr. Ticklemouse, really."

Willy was so tickled he began to whistle "Patience," and went dancing around the room like a merry little grig. He ended with a somersault across Dorfy's bed.

Mr. Ticklemouse opened the candy box with shining eyes. "Well now, that's what I call pretty nice of the Sleepyland twins!" said he, brightly. "It isn't April Fool candy by any chance, I suppose?"

"No, indeed! Just taste one!" Davy jumped out of bed and held up one of the chocolates to the mouse. "Um, yum—just as advertised," said the mouse, "look just as if they'd jump right down your throat."

"What they would!" Willy squeaked, laughing. As if by accident, he shut one eye and stood on one leg while he said it, something leaped forth like a chocolate-colored streak, plump into Willy's open mouth.

"Why, Willy!" Dorfy could hardly believe her eyes. "What was it?" "Chocolate frog!" laughed Davy with dancing eyes.

"Chocolate diver," the Ticklemouse corrected him. "Like to take a look at the boxful, now?"

"They're alive, all of them!" whispered Davy, much excited.

"Largest bunch of chocolates you ever saw," chuckled Willy. "Like one?"

But the twins drew back. "We've never eaten five candies, you know." "Wait a moment," whispered the Ticklemouse, "and I'll call them to order." He tickled the box cover with a gentle tapping, murmuring something to the little brown people inside. Then he took the cover off entirely. "Get as delicious looking, sprang to the edge of the candy box and raised tiny chocolate hands above his head, balancing himself ready for the spring.

"To the deeps!" snapped the Ticklemouse, with a nod toward Davy's open mouth. The chocolate diver shot up and forward like a boy from a springboard, landing between Davy's surprised lips in a graceful curve.

Dorfy's turn came next, and try as she would she couldn't help jumping when the next delicious little diver landed in her mouth with a gurgle of melting sweetness.

"That'll do for tonight," said the mouse when each had swallowed three of the delicious creatures. "I'll tie up the rest till next time—look out there—catch him!" One of the chocolate divers had darted toward the open window and dived headlong to the ground below.

Fat old Taff, the twins' big cat, was waiting below that very window. He had smelled mice for half an hour, and had made up his mind they would come out if he waited long enough. So when he heard the cry and saw a tiny figure ready to jump, his hungry jaws flew open as if worked by a secret spring.

There was a sudden sound of clinking and spluttering, and the still night air was full of the squalls and extraneous of a very much surprised old Taff.

The Ticklemouse clapped his paws softly and gave three cheers under his breath. "Dinner for the cat tribe to swallow," he laughed to Willy, "but it's better the chocolate diver than you or your Uncle Tick!"

"Ready inside there!" he squeaked. "Number two to the front." A fat little figure, brown as a berry and twice

Notice the Pleasing Odor Of Cedar That Pervades The Big Store

This is caused from the display of the WAYNE CEDARED PAPER WARDROBE in our large north window. These wardrobes are an innovation.

It takes only a moment and your garment is hung full length and free from wrinkles in a germ-tight, air-tight, dust-proof, moth-proof and moisture-proof bag, redolent of the clean, wholesome atmosphere of the cedar grove, which repels everything that destroys clothes.

Wayne Cedared Paper Wardrobes are the ideal storing protection for your winter clothes through the summer and your summer clothes through the winter. But they are MUCH MORE than that.

They are PROTECTION WORTH DOLLARS for the clothes you put on and off from week to week—for your Sunday clothes, for your party gowns, for your light and heavy wraps, as the weather varies.

They freshen your clothes during the rest periods, make them last longer, do away with so many life-destroying pressings.

No odor is imparted to the clothes. How preferable to the disagreeable smell of tar paper, camphor or moth balls, which clings to your clothes for weeks.

The Wayne Wardrobe is tough, pliable and durable. It is good for years of service. Let us show you its construction—its stout steel hanger outside and its row of steel hooks inside.

All the Weight On the Hooks

The inside hooks are so firmly fastened through a metal bar that they can never come loose. This bar is riveted to the outside hanger so that the entire weight falls on the hanger and NONE ON THE WARDROBE. We have hung 100 lbs. on these hooks.

Extra wide opening of the wardrobe—ac-cordian pleated sides, giving ample room for the garment without the least crushing. Reinforced satchel bottom and metal clasps for closing.

Put your Wayne Wardrobes anywhere—in the attic—basement—storeroom—closet—back hall. They are flexible, cedar chests without the weight, bulk and the inconvenience of the old fashioned cedar chests which you cannot lift.

WAS NOT THE MAN [ROCKFORD WANTED]

Absurd Conjecture, Presented As Fact, Was Absolutely Without Foundation.

"There is no ground whatsoever for the supposition that Charles Edgerton, the man wearing a woman's nightgown in lieu of underclothing whom we released yesterday, is 'Fred Stevens' who escaped from Hancock's sanitarium at Rockford Sunday morning," said Chief Appleby today. Stevens was mentally unbalanced, tongue-tied, clean shaven, and light complexioned. Edgerton was perfectly rational when sober, had a mustache, and was swarthy-skinned. Plenty of other points of dissimilarity could have been cited to establish the error of the story published this morning, had any one taken the trouble to make inquiries at police headquarters.

UNDESIRABLES ON TRAMP TO MILTON

Hand Family of Five Did Not Care to Use Transportation to Green Bay Provided by Postmaster.

Milton people are warned to look out for the undesirable Hand family who started for that village, about this morning. The Hand's, consisting of a man and a woman and three children, thrust themselves upon Janesville yesterday afternoon, and after telling a pitiful story of want and deprivation, appealed to Postmaster Anderson for transportation to Green Bay, where, according to their story, resided a married daughter who would help them. At the request of the postmaster, Chief Appleby went to the depot and talked with them. It was made to appear that they had originally resided in Racine but had recently shipped their household goods to Rockford on the supposition that the head of the family had good chances of obtaining employment there. But arriving there penniless and being unable to find a house which could be secured without paying rent in advance, they had been forced to move on. Chief Appleby advised the postmaster to buy a railroad ticket to Green Bay for the wife and a half ticket for the eldest child and let the man find employment here and earn his own passage. This arrangement seemed satisfactory to the wanderers and they accepted the transportation with many expressions of gratitude.

"They said that they had the means to stop overnight at the Railroad hotel. Meanwhile, as soon as they were longer under the observation of the postmaster and chief of police, the whole outfit started begging and collected a goodly amount. Rev. Mr. Willman would not give them any money but offered to secure employment for him and agreed to meet him at the depot when the rest of the family were expected to start for Green Bay this morning and give him particulars regarding the job. Hand was in a very scornful and "uplofty" mood regarding the offer. The Trinity church pastor saw him this forenoon and the family failed to get aboard the northbound train.

Later on one of the boarders at the Railroad hotel found a valuable steckpin and some other small belongings were missing from his room and reported to the police department. Officer Sam Brown and the boarder got on the trail of the Hand family, who had left that hostelry some time before, and after a long chase ran them down on the railroad track leading to Milton, some distance from the Janesville city limits. They were carrying all their baggage and "hoofing" it at a rapid clip. Officer Brown stopped the party and insisted upon searching the male contingent. He found, however, no traces of the missing property and after considerable parleying permitted the Hand's to resume their way at the same time warning them not to return to Janesville on any sort of pretext.

PASSING OF PARLOR CARPET

Modern Methods of Living Turn to the Rug as the More Sanitary.

Modern methods of living are asserting themselves more and more every day. For some peculiar reason man always has assumed the prerogative of supplying what he considered the utilitarian portions of the home, and to woman has been delegated the ornamentation, but in the last few years ideas have been changing in this regard, and women have become not only the largest buyers, but the finest judges of the necessities, as well as the luxuries of everyday existence.

Only a few years ago the height of womanly ambition in household decoration or idea was a Brussels carpet in the "best room," a floor covering that was often put over a cushion of straw and left to gather dampness, dust and germs, sometimes for years, in the unheated parlor. Anyone who has been around at spring cleaning and caught a view of the dirt which has sifted through the carpet was certainly appalled at the sight. For many years this floor covering was considered the acme of elegance, and the woman in comfortable circumstances who would have had the temerity to substitute hardwood floors and rugs for the old-fashioned carpet would have been considered as decidedly eccentric and extravagant.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"DON'T judge others by yourself." In the days when I was a little, in the years before my companions and I had acquired the veneer of grown-up self control, that used to be a favorite by-word with us.

If anyone accused someone else of intending to do a mean thing, the quick and stinging retort would often be:

"Don't judge others by yourself." I think it would be a good by-word for grown-ups, too. Don't judge others by yourself. You are continually trying to, but you can't.

Some philosophers deny this, and harp on the fact, that the elemental things, all men and women are very much alike.

I admit that the same elemental desires and passions are present in all of us.

But in such different proportions and so differently combined and developed, that we may be as different from one another as one piece of music from another.

"I Am Afraid to Go Home in the Dark" and the Jewel Song in Faust may contain the same elemental notes, but these are certainly so combined and proportioned that the pieces of music differ widely.

"Don't tell me," says the woman with the serpent's tongue, "that any girl could be alone in an office with a man as much as his stenographer is with him—and you know how fascinating he is—and be perfectly straight."

You are judging someone else by your own power of resisting temptation, Mrs. Gossip. Don't. Maybe you couldn't do it, but you have no right to assert that she couldn't.

"You certainly don't think," says the business man, "that a man with his opportunities for grafting and without the slightest danger of getting caught, doesn't turn a penny on the side once in a while. I guess both your parents came from Missouri."

Thereby, Mr. Business Man, you register your opinion of your own power to resist temptation and try to judge someone else by it. Don't.

Maybe you know the temptation would be too much for you, but that most emphatically doesn't give you the right to say it would be too much for your neighbor.

People who try to make a fool rule of themselves whereby to measure other men and women, remind me of the deceitful old adage we used to swallow so confidently in our childhood—"a pint's a pound the world around."

You can't any more make of yourself a measure for other people than you can say a pint of feathers weighs an ounce, and therefore two pints of lead would weigh two ounces.

These I have given are examples looking upwards, but it's just the same looking down.

You haven't any right to judge anyone who yields to temptation as weak because the temptation would have meant little to you.

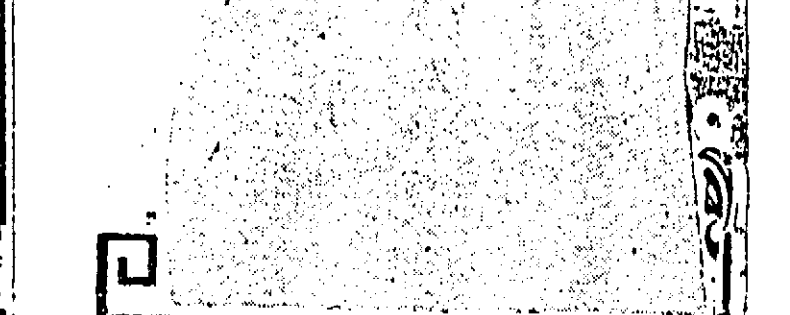

All to differences of makeup, of heredity, of environment stand in the way of such a judgment.

Of course you remember Omar's,

"After a momentary silence spoke
Some vessel of a more ungaily make;
They sneer at me for leaning all awry;
What! did the hand then of the Potter shake?"

"Why," said another, "some there are who tell
Of one who threatens he will toss to Hell
The luckless pots he married in making—fish,
He's a Good Fellow, and 'twill all be well."

Surely, you can be kind enough if you are of the well made pots to refuse to ever try to judge those that lean awry because they were "married in making."

A NIGHTGOWN WITH THE NEW "PEASANT" SLEEVE.

Utmost simplicity marks the very smartest French lingerie now, in accordance with the future for peasant types of all sorts; but of course the materials are of a fineness and dainty quality that no peasant might dream of. The seamless shoulder is suggested in this nightgown though the sleeves are cleverly fitted by seams underneath. Very fine, dense, or semi-bonding—and hand embroidered dots form the only trimming, and through a casing at the neck is run a length of washable ribbon.

Lightning. Although there is a hidden law underneath, each lightning flash is as frankish and capricious as cyclone any of women. Some of the incredible actions of lightning read like mysterious dreams of Poe. Superstitious savants still seem to endow it with a kind of intelligence, an intelligence that seems midway between the rough, blundering intelligence of the universe and the discriminating intelligence of animals. Keen, capricious, malicious or stupid, farseeing or blind, behold it quivering, writhing, twisting out into space, harmlessly flickering among man and trees, or loaded up to the clouds with instant death and destruction.

Japanee and Damascus Blades. The Japanese blade, placed almost on a par with the Damascus product in art and utility, differs from the Arabian weapon in one material detail of manufacture. Instead of having a uniform high temper, which gives the remarkable flexibility possessed by the Damascus blade, the Japanese sword has two tempers, a hard and a mild steel.

The edge of the blade is hard with the finest temper, the body and back of a milder temper sufficient to give some elasticity. A Japanese sword cannot be bent half double with the pressure of a hand; it is very nearly rigid.

Woman's Charm. Her charm is in her femininity, and anything that tends to make her less like a woman must tend to make her more like a man—which is horrible.

MENTAL RECREATION.

By MARY RUSSELL

The over-trained mind is the over-strained mind. The mind which is active and kept in good condition by exercises of all the faculties leads to the end. It is when a person concentrates too intently on one subject that we learn of a mind diseased.

No man would spend hours each day developing the muscles of one arm. He would expect to be a monstrosity if he did such a thing.

Why then do men and women think that to devote all their time to one thing is good for the brain?

As a people, we lack imagination. We cannot meet the mind as a concrete thing. We do not see the logical minds of the people, but we see us on the street, but talk to those same people and you will find that they certainly are at the corners in many instances.

People who become insane are of the class who think one thing till their brains no longer work as a perfect machine, but go astray and betray the miserable mistaken creature.

Everybody needs some sort of rest—but we are prone to think of rest as a hammock and nothing to do when the summer time comes.

Rest for brain workers is found in doing something different.

If you have been doing hard mental work get out and work just as hard doing something that will build up the other side of your brain. Some of the cells get atrophied. That is why the old-time professor was so dull and dry looking. He had sapped all his energies in his endeavor to develop one set of cells to the highest degree.

We are changing all that in a measure. The college professors are among the first to take advantage of the new ideas, but the men who work in offices—who write editorials—the women who work all day in stores and in shops—the housekeepers who labor at the household tasks—these take rest by sitting still and growing inert. They do not know, or will not allow themselves to know, that to be fresh and keep young they must get out into the open. Tennis and ball develop the muscles and keep the brain alert along a different line. Golf is the resort of the business man of sense who knows that even that tired feeling is benefited by a different kind of life. Walking and dancing are all good in their places.

The thing is to set up an activity that will make the whole being in harmony.

Concentrate just enough to learn one thing well, but do not concentrate to the detriment of your brain. Most brains are capable of very high development, yet most brains are weak and undeveloped.

Try to think of your brain as you do of your body—as a set of muscles—all the better for exercise and capable of deterioration if due care is not given to every part. A well developed brain in a fine body is a thing that rejoices the eye and heart of all beholders and is a constant joy to the possessor.

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

It does not matter what the work, nor how difficult the task, he who undertakes, strong in purpose, courageous and determined, will win out every time.

The successful man is he who has worked out his own success; who has created in himself the desire to do, centering every thought and act upon that desire until it has become a determination; then feeding, nourishing and developing that determination. And he must be narrow, yet broad. The large, powerful river is that of many tributaries; so the great man is he who receives and properly uses the things that are useful to him. He is the one who is able to glean; who, with the ideas of the whole world his, as they are yours and mine, has learned to pick from this and that the little particles that are of value to him. He is the one able to surround himself with good service, always on the lookout for better, and never backward in freeing himself from the driftwood of incompetence. He is the man who appreciates the value of possibilities. I think it was Emerson who said: "Live today as best you can, accomplishing all you can and finishing whatever you undertake. Let today be shaped by yesterday, and do not forget that it makes to-morrow."

And this is the doctrine of the Strong Man. Strength is what is needed; the strength to do; to uplift; to inspire; to help. To create happiness is the work of the Strong Man. It is Strength.

"La Plaque" Ornament For Wear With Simple Costumes.

With the simple costumes for street wear Parisian women are wearing a new piece of jewelry, which they call "la plaque." It is a round medallion about the size of a silver dollar and is of platinum or silver, but never of gold. Pearls, brilliants or colored stones are incrustated on the surface, and delightful color combinations are secured by enamel.

This little ornament is worn around the neck suspended by a fine chain or a narrow velvet ribbon with jeweled slides. The simplicity of the costume is relieved by the jeweled disk, and if you are fortunate in the possession of the many little dress necessities there will be a plaque for every costume.

If the American woman grasps the main idea of the simple lines of dress there can be a safe venture in the addition of a piece of jewelry. Indeed, the little French ornament is extremely successful in producing with the severe dress a distinctive and delightful whole.

$3,000,000 Advertising Contract Made With Four Afternoon Newspapers

John Wanamaker, the Merchant Prince, Prefers the Newspapers That Are Published at a Time When People Have the Opportunity to Read.

John Wanamaker is the most widely known and one of the most successful merchants in the world.

He has reduced merchandising to exact science and his methods are regarded as standard in the retail world.

He is also one of the largest, if not the largest, purchasers of advertising space. For years he has made the subject of publicity a study and he is probably able to get as much value out of a dollar spent in advertising as anyone in the advertising field.

In New York at the present time, Mr. Wanamaker is running a page advertisement each day in four newspapers of that city. He has entered into a contract to run, not for one year, but for five years! In the preparation of his advertising copy he employs a staff of editors, artists, special writers, etc., large enough to equip a good-sized daily newspaper.

The New York Herald, The New York Sun and The New York Tribune being perhaps the best known of the daily papers of that city, all of them morning papers, and established when New York was little more than a village, will occur to everyone as being the mediums selected by Mr. Wanamaker.

On the contrary, he uses The Telegram, The Mail, The Post and The Brooklyn Standard Union, each and every one of them evening newspapers.

In an interview with the manager of Mr. Wanamaker's advertising, he stated that he chose the evening papers because "the public has much more time to read the advertisements at night than in the morning, and, further, the evening papers tend to go into the family circle more."

That a single merchant should make a five years' contract with each of four papers to insert a page advertisement each week-day of the year for a period of five years, has created a real sensation in the advertising world, and the fact that not a single morning newspaper is included in that list has made publishers of morning papers, not only in that city, but in other cities, sit up and take notice.

Mr. Wanamaker's preference for evening newspapers as an advertising medium is based on nearly a half century of experience in advertising. His example is worthy of the attention of every merchant in the country who spends money for advertising space. Springfield (Ill.) Evening News.

From the above will be noted that even though Wanamaker is one of the largest buyers of advertising space, yet, he prefers to reach the people every day rather than to use two-page spreads (as some of the smaller merchants do) not so often.

A point that Janesville's progressive merchants might well consider is that in New York it requires four papers to cover their field as thoroughly as one paper covers this field, and that while the field is much greater, the rates for advertising are equally large.

ANTS DO REASON

Authority Again Asserts They Show More Than Instinct.

Lord Avebury Sees No Reason to Change Views Expressed 30 Years Ago—Believes They Possess High Power.

London.—"Do ants reason?" is an interesting question, which has cropped up again. Hitherto we had such an eminent authority as Lord Avebury, expressing his unquestionable belief that they do. This so far back as 30 years ago, and we let it remain at that. But now comes along Henry Hill, an equally well-informed authority on the insect world, who, during a lecture at the London Institution, would not allow ants any higher quality than that of "instinct."

In reply Lord Avebury sees no reason to change his view expressed 30 years ago and still believes these insects have the "gift of reason."

"I have not studied ants for many years," said Lord Avebury, "but I hope to renew my experiments before long and I still adhere to the conclusion which you will find in my book on 'Ants, Bees and Wasps.' In that work I said, 'When we see an ant hill tenanted by thousands of industrious inhabitants excavating chambers, forming tunnels, making roads, guarding their homes, gathering food, feeding the young, tending their domestic animals, each one fulfilling its duties industriously and without confusion, it is difficult altogether to deny to them the gift of reason and the preceding observations tend to confirm the opinion that their mental powers differ from those of men not so much in kind as in degree.'"

"My principal experiment was one in which I placed intoxicated ants near a nest, 38 being friends and 40 strangers to the colony. Of the friends 27 were taken into the nest and carefully tended, seven were dropped into the nest surrounding it and four were left alone. Of the strangers 30 were dropped into the water, one was left alone and nine were taken into the nest. Of the latter seven were again removed from the nest and carried to the water. Could anything more clearly show the reasoning power of the ants?"

Lord Avebury gives instances without number which seem to show that ants have a higher power than that of instinct. One of the most remarkable relations to their treatment of the eggs of the aphids, or "ant cow." They carefully tend these eggs during the winter, taking them to their nests for the purpose and then remove the young aphids when hatched in the spring, placing them in earthen "cow sheds," specially constructed on the young shoots of the daisy, the plant which provides the aphids with nourishment. The herd of aphids thus reared is then regularly stroked, or "milked," for the honey they secrete. "This seems to me," said Lord Avebury in his historic work, "a most remarkable case of prudence. Our ants may not perhaps lay up food for the winter, but they do more, for they keep during six months the eggs which will enable them to procure food during the following summer, a case of prudence unexampled in the animal kingdom."

AGE IS NO BAR TO ROMANCE

Couple of Seventy-Two and Sixty-Two Wed as Nearly Like Elopement as Possible—Plan Surprise.

York, Pa.—That age is no bar to romance was demonstrated here the other day, when announcement was made of the secret wedding in Harrisburg of Rev. Adam W. Shenberger of Kansas, a retired minister of the United Evangelical church, and Elanora Swartz of this city, a former matron at the York county almshouse. Shenberger is seventy-two and his bride 62.

The couple planned their wedding as a surprise, and the only Yorker let into the secret was Rev. Harry Daniels of the West Street Methodist church. He was awakened from sleep before daylight and requested to accompany the pair to Harrisburg and perform the ceremony, which took place in the parlors of the Metropolitan hotel.

Shenberger is a widower and a former York pastor. On a visit here from Kansas two years ago he met Miss Swartz. Recently he returned to York and renewed his suit, and the marriage was arranged.

Pie Is Real Danger

Los Angeles, Cal.—That the pie-eating habit is ruining the stomachs of the school children of Los Angeles is the report made by the school lunch committee of the civic association. This committee admits it has failed to induce pupils to give up pie as the sole noonday lunch.

An effort will be made to diminish the trade of pie vendors by establishing more penny kitchens in the poorer school districts.

Great Exodus From Britain

London.—There is a remarkable exodus from the United Kingdom at the present time.

According to a return issued recently in the form of a White paper, 81,428 persons left Britain for abroad during the month of March, 1910, against 33,421 in March, 1909.

Of the total 32,846 were British subjects—against 21,583 in March, 1909.

In what year was President McKinley shot? If you can't remember that, how do you expect the people in your city to remember that you sell a certain line of goods which you advertised once or twice several years ago?

THE SIXTH WIDOW

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

There were five widows in the village of Glen Head when the sixth arrived. Her name was Tompkins.

There was one widower in Glen Head to offset the five widows. He was Thomas Jordan.

The good natured Tom Jordan helped to unload her furniture and wrestle the bedsteads and bureaus around. He bought him and a whitewash brush and hired a boy to whitewash the cellar. He took a hoe himself and cut down the weeds in the front yard. The Widow Tompkins was thankful and affable, but she held Mr. Jordan at a distance. He had been told all about the husbands of the other widows—when they died, how they died and their very last words. He knew the financial resources of the house to a cent. He even knew that one of the widows had a sore heel and that two others had corns. In his fatherly way he questioned the sixth widow, but he was turned down at every point. He had curiously kept him thinking of her. The more he thought of her the more he wondered if Providence hadn't sent Mrs. Tompkins along to become Mrs. Jordan. In a month or so he decided that it was so. See how easy it was! See how those five widows had neglected logic for years and years!

The Widow Tompkins sized Mr. Jordan up for a fatherly man and a good fellow, but logic came in here again. Fatherly men and good fellows are slower than molasses in January about getting around to propose marriage if things are left to their natural course. The five other widows hadn't figured this out. An event must happen. Providence was right around there to help it to happen.

At the end of three months the fatherly man was quite at home in the house of the sixth widow—just neighborly, you know; just dropped in to say if she wanted the kitchen door painted or the ceiling whitewashed he'd see about it for her. On this particular day he was in mind he was in want of a couple of empty barrels. It struck him that he had seen three or four in the widow's cellar when the whitewashing was doing. He found the kitchen door open, and walked in. He found no one in the house, and he walked down the cellar—only neighborly, you know; just neighborly. He had found his barrels when he heard the door shut on him and the lock click. He climbed the stairs and pounded on the door and called out his name and errand, and a voice answered him:

"Ah, you tramp, I've got you under lock and key and am going for the constable!"

"Mrs. Tompkins, this is no tramp. This is Mr. Jordan."

"You can't lie to me, sir. Mr. Jordan doesn't walk into folks' houses and down cellar."

"But I did, I was looking for barrels."

"Well, you can keep on looking until the constable comes!"

He sought to further explain, but she ridiculed the idea. The fact that a tramp had robbed a house in the village a few days previously gave her a good groundwork to build on. The most she would promise was to leave him down there until he had undergone an entire change of heart and was prepared to live an upright life in the future. It was 1 o'clock when Mr. Jordan found himself a prisoner. He sat on the cellar stairs for the next two hours vainly trying to convince the woman upstairs that he was no tramp. He gave his name over and over again, but the steady reply was: "You are simply trying to imitate Mr. Jordan's voice, but you can't imitate me. I think I will call him in and let him settle with you."

From 3 to 4 o'clock Mr. Jordan patrolled the cellar. He had cobwebs and whitewash and old barrels for company. He could have called from one of the narrow windows to a passerby, but he didn't care to. He didn't want to be laughed at. From 4 to 6 he sat on the stairs, giving his name over and over again and taking his solemn affidavit that he was Thomas Jordan and no Wary William. His words brought no response from the other side of the door. From 6 to 7 he sat at the bottom of the steps and saw the glimmer enter the windows and heard the whippoorwill tune up. Then a rap on the door above called him up to hear the words:

"I am now going for Mr. Jordan."

"But I am Mr. Jordan."

"Your voice does sound a bit like his, but you can't deceive me. Mr. Jordan is a fine man."

"But so am I."

"Mr. Jordan thinks I am a fine woman."

"So do I."

"I believe Mr. Jordan intends to ask me to marry him."

"I know he does. I ask you right now."

"And Mr. Jordan will want the marriage to come off next month."

"I want it to come off next week!"

Well, there you are! Five widows fooling away their time for several years, and along comes the sixth and plays the joker within three months! Yes, sir, and that couple are living together in the same nest today and as happy as clams. It's as easy as green when you know how, and widowhood all the rest of your days when you don't.

Old Pennsylvania Bank Notes. The state treasury at Harrisburg, Pa., which frequently receives "sub-plasters" and old forms of currency and bank notes for redemption, was recently asked to pay the value of two notes of the Northampton bank of Allentown, which a citizen of that part of the state had discovered at his home. The notes were dated in the late '20's and one was for five dollars and the other for ten dollars. It was found upon inquiry that the bank closed its doors at one time and the writer had admitted it. The notes will be returned if the writer wants them or will be kept among the curiosities at the capitol.

An Adherent.

By mistake a farmer had got aboard a car reserved for a party of college graduates who were returning to their alma mater for some special event. There was a large quantity of refreshments on the car, and the farmer was allowed to join the others. Finally some one asked him: "Are you an alumnus?" "No," said the farmer earnestly; "but I believe in it."—Lippincott's.

DEMANDS DIRECT VOTE FOR U. S. SENATORS

Senator Owen Makes Convincing Argument in Favor of Proposed Constitutional Amendment.

Washington, June 1.—Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma delivered a convincing address in the senate in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment for the election of United States senators by popular election.

Mr. Owen reinforced his argument with an array of facts that gave a chronological history of the efforts in the past to enact the resolution for which he is now standing sponsor. His speech contained the most complete historical review of legislation in the two houses of congress and action by various state legislatures ever compiled, all tending to show the trend of sentiment favorable to a change in existing methods but lacking only in the essential of concurrent action on the part of both houses of congress.

When Mr. Owen had concluded Mr. Beveridge spoke briefly, approving what had been said and calling attention to the fact that both parties in Indiana had declared in favor of election of senators by the people. The question, Mr. Beveridge said, was not a partisan one in any sense.

RIOTERS ARE THROWN IN JAIL.

Members of Mob Attack Rockford Policemen—39 Arrested.

Rockford, Ill., June 1.—Thirty-nine men are in the county jail awaiting grand jury action on a charge of rioting. They were part of a mob which attacked a squad of policemen, ran wild for an hour or more, and finally wound up a holiday orgy by trying to storm the city jail to obtain the release of a prisoner. Additional arrests are expected.

The riot had its inception when Policeman Charles Cavanaugh tried to disperse a crowd in Seventh street. One, who was drunk, refused to move and was arrested. While taking him to the police station, Cavanaugh was attacked by another man, whom he succeeded in capturing. Cavanaugh, fighting off the others, landed his assailant in the station.

Ostrich Suffers No Discomfort.

The process by which the ostrich is made to give up its plumes for the adorning of women is said to cause the long legged bird no more discomfort than a man experiences in having his hair cut. The feathers are clipped off about an inch from the body, and in about a month the stump of the quill comes out quite easily.

The Strength of Resistance.

There is perhaps no strength so great and abiding as that which follows from a resisted temptation. Every dangerous allurement is like an enchanted monster, which, being conquered, loses all his venom and changes at once into a king of great treasure, eager to make requital.—John Oliver Hobbes.
